

Poetry Series

Darren Sheldon
- poems -

Publication Date:
2013

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Darren Sheldon()

Claudia

Why! Claudia! Why! Leaving is such sweet sorrow, Staying too bitter love, My heart shattered to fragments, Yet burning in passion, I loved you dearly, truly, Yet you poisoned that love, You are vile, Yet beautiful, I love you still, but I will not tell

Darren Sheldon

I Am Not Yet Born

I am not yet born, guard me, From the winter's biting cold, From the monsters,
horrid breath,

Darren Sheldon

I Stand Here

I gaze at this modern man, So deeply entrenched in himself, He loses focus, He forgets how to love, How to hate, How to cherish, I pity him, I pity myself, For I am this man, With an ego larger than the world,

Darren Sheldon

Life

We strive and toil, find and lose, Search and find, cry and laugh, We lay to rest, hope for a better dawn, Is this a curse or a blessing we search,

Darren Sheldon