

Poetry Series

David Wheeldon
- poems -

Publication Date:
2009

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

David Wheeldon(11/10/1969)

Hello to all my fellow poets, As everyone else here i enjoy writing poetry it soothes the soul to express how things look different in words. As they say words speak louder.

i am 42 yrs of age married to Tina with two boys Marcus 12yrs and kyle 8yrs old, i have been writing for years and i enjoy it, i also like to inspire people with my words.

and help if they need it.

I am a stay at home person due to a disability i have.

I live in the north east UK Thank You for reading this

Yours Dave

That Was My Mum

She had the kindest of faces
Her heart filled with love
She would do anything for anyone
'That was my mum'
When I found myself in need of a friend
it was you I'd turn too,
You were my guiding light,
Now my shining star,
'That was my mum'
You gave to me the best times of my life
How proud I was to walk by your side
Your smile and beauty dazzled all
Oh, yes
'That was my mum'
But now the angels have come and taken
The woman with the golden heart
How proud you must make them feel
'That was my mum'

David Wheeldon

David Wheeldon