

Poetry Series

Lauren Love
- poems -

Publication Date:
2011

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Lauren Love(23/6/1999)

I was born in Australia, with my parents, one brother and two sisters. Unfortunaly, before I was born, my sister, Erin, had died when my mother was 6 months along in her pregnacey. I have always felt like Erin is a piece of me.

I usually like to be confident but behind my brave face, my heart is completely damaged and hurt for what had happened to my family. My mother calls me special as I remind her of our guardian angel, Erin Lousie. R.I.P

Fury Spills Out

I begged them to stop,
They didn't listen.
I begged them to help,
As one of them said, "Kiss `em."

My body beaten up,
And nowhere to run.
All they did was punch and laugh,
Like they thought it was fun.

Something snapped in me,
The fear turning into fury quickly.
The pain ignored as I attacked,
And the sight of their faces, turning sickly.

I could have laughed as their plan turned wrong,
But I didn't have a cold heart like them.
All I did was stare,
And then they started to listen.

Lauren Love

Graduation

We have been here for years,
And now it's time to go.
We all have our fears,
Like having to mow.

We will go our separate ways,
But will be forever friends.
Our lives is like a maze,
And will never end.

We're off to high school,
We're big kids now.
And we are cool,
Even if we bow.

Lauren Love

I Can'T Do This Without You

I wish you were here beside me
To help me sing this song
I didn't believe it would happen
But you proved me wrong

Oh, I wished for good
I wished for nice
Oh, I wished for peace everynight

You're the Spreader of my Love
The Keeper of my Heart
You were this
From the start

You're my guardian angel
My special friend
I know your not here
But our love will never end

You seem to understand me
You help me when the times are tough
I can tell yuo everthing
And I can't thankyou enough

You're like the fire in my heart
The one that never flickers
Sometimes I have nightmares
But I don't want you to be the one that suffers

You're my guardian
And I don't want you to suffer anymore
I tell you all my problems
And I love you, more & more

And I can't do this without you

Lauren Love

Shadow-Kissed

Why this happens to me,
I do not understand
Why this happens to me,
They don't give a damn

Since the death of my sister,
A shadow hung over me
She followed in my heart,
But was never there beside me.

Some don't know,
Some don't care,
Some don't show,
How they really feel.

I always thought I could handle the pain,
But sometimes it was too much.
I would punch or bite myself,
Or wishing I was dead.

I would never actually do it,
But sometimes it feels.
Like tying a rope around my throat,
Was the most simplest thing.

My heart is in pain,
All day long,
For all of them I live,
A shadow-kissed life.

Lauren Love