

Poetry Series

mixie chiera03
- poems -

Publication Date:
2009

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

mixie chiera03(Dec 13,1987)

i am a young girl passionate in writing since my elementary days. I used to be a school journalist in elementary but I had stopped the field in high school. When I entered college, i pursue to be back on track so i decided to be back on the course and became the Features Editor after the second semester. It's a long way goal, but i am happy with the fruit of hardships.

Anxiety

A bunch of sorry for my mistake.

A thousand heartaches for my regrets.

Bucket of tears for my sadness.

How can I find serenity?

As much, do I need to turn the tide?

Turn back time, make things right?

Ohh...how I badly wish for that...

But reality doesn't allow me to.

What is sorry for?

Why tears have to fall?

Let the cold wind blow... in a corner, dark as it can be...

where melancholy

Harmonizes with the unbearable silence.

Find wisdom in the peaceful room

of the unpeaceful mind.

mixie chiera03

One Morning After The Midnight Rain

I hear the birds' soft refrain
That makes the dawn
fresh to meet.
I feel the breeze's cold zephyr
Touching my cheeks
And makes me chill.
I smell the scent of morning dew,
the sweet smell
of grass and leaves...
though that some
are brown or green,
mark the fade of mighty wind.
I see the sky's so blue and wide
that shows the sun's bright smile.
And so I see a girl in pain
stand up with a brighter smile,
confident to face
the world of dark hue...
one morning
after the midnight rain.

mixie chiera03