

Poetry Series

Ryan Mattock
- poems -

Publication Date:
2006

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Ryan Mattock()

The Book Cover

Ravaged by the weather outside,
ages with me, but face like time.
Prada, gucci, all passers by,
no one dare look incase he's high!
But deep down inside, lives a man with a past,
neglected by his mother and hit by his dad,
This is a man without hope of success,
this is a man with no permanent address,
But he is the one with a story to tell,
for he is the one already in hell,
and judging by the people that pass,
No one would listen, or give a rat's ass!
This is a good man just down on his luck,
this is a good man, no one gives a...

Ryan Mattock

The Lost

Sitting in my room, thinking of the girl who doesn't want me.
Feeling empty as a well with no water,
The most intriguing creature to walk the earth,
initially not my type at all.
For three whole weeks it took to love,
A girl so unique, most certainly sent from above!
A personality more than most,
The girl who has no love for me,
In my mind, now a ghost.

Ryan Mattock